

THE GAZETTE.

TUESDAY EVENING, MAY 17.

TORN BY A PET DOG.—A blooded bull-terrier that has been the pride and pet of Joseph McManus's household, in Reading, Pa., on Thursday, suddenly turned upon its mistress, Miss Annie McManus, and nearly killed her. He tore and bit her face and arms fearfully.

The dog is 4 years old, weighs 60 pounds, answers to the name of Jocko, and is valued at $1,000. Its mother was imported from England, and $150 was paid for her in that country. About six months ago Jocko was bitten by a strange dog, which had been hanging around the neighborhood for several days. Jocko was confined for some time thereafter, but showing no ill-effects of the bite, was recently released and had the freedom of the house.

While Miss McManus, who is a girl of 19 years, was showing a new servant over the house on Thursday, they came upon Jocko in a bedroom. The animal retreated to the library, and later, when Miss McManus appeared in that apartment and ordered the dog out, the brute suddenly sprang for her throat, which he missed through the turning of her head, but instead sank his teeth in the left side of her face, bearing her to the floor. She was alone at the time, but managed to release herself, when the dog renewed his attack, biting her again and again, and would undoubtedly have killed her had not her cries brought members of the family to her assistance.

The doctors found that her injuries are very severe. The dog had sunk his teeth through his victim's cheek in half a dozen places, lacerated one ear and mangled her shoulder, wrists and hands fearfully.

It is feared that the dog had gone mad from his bite received six months ago.

NORFOLK AND WESTERN EXTENSIONS.—The Norfolk and Western Railroad has given orders to its superintendent of construction on the Ohio river extension to employ enough men to make the number at work on the line 1000, so that the road may be completed in 1900. The force of men now at work is supplemented by the construction of trains. The company will build many new branches from the Ohio river extension this summer to reach coal and timber lands off from the main line of the road.
